

In Support of Whistle-Blowers

"Don't do what I did. Don't wait until a new war has started. Don't wait until thousands more have died, before you tell the truth with documents that reveal lies or crimes... You might save a war's worth of lives." Daniel Ellsberg-Pentagon Papers.

Julian Assange and WikiLeaks:

Julian Assange, founder of WikiLeaks, has been living in asylum in the Ecuadorian Embassy in London since June 19, 2012--- 3 years! Why? Swedish authorities want to extradite Assange to question him regarding accusations of a sexual nature, unrelated to his work with WikiLeaks. Willing to be questioned in the Embassy, he refuses to travel to Sweden, as this could lead to his extradition to the USA where it is believed there is a warrant for his arrest on charges of espionage over the release of thousands of documents by the WikiLeaks site. WikiLeaks, founded in 2006, is a legal, non-profit, online news publisher that works with nearly 100 international media organizations and is funded by donations from around the world. WikiLeaks publishes secret and classified information from anonymous, verified news sources and whistleblowers.

WikiLeaks is currently credited with providing to the US public chapters of the secret Trans-Pacific Partnership Trade deal. Based on these leaks, many now believe it is not in the best interests of US workers and country. Assange and WikiLeaks provided protection for whistleblower Edward Snowden, the former computer analyst who leaked NSA documents on mass surveillance and US Government spying to the press. Chelsea Manning is serving a 35 year sentence for leaking military and diplomatic documents to WikiLeaks, including Iraq tapes of the indiscriminate murders of civilians.

Yes, there are protections available to whistle-blowers in the USA. If you see something that is a violation of the law, gross mismanagement of public funds, abuse of authority, substantial/specific dangers to public health, you can report these without fear of retaliatory action.

If you see something, Say Something.
